

2026 Artist Bio – Shane Martin

Aka SubSanctuary

Bio #1

SubSanctuary isn't just a brand and Shane Martin isn't just the artist behind it. He's a designer, fabricator, student and curator; all interwoven and intrinsically connected. He denotes the landmarks of his journey through this world with a diverse and kinetic array of inspired artifacts-- melding hand, heart and machine to create items that speak their meaning through medium, movement and utility. Driven by the unseen forces that decide wood grain can appear as rock and water can sculpt either in near perfect symmetry-- met with a daily devotion to the act of creating itself-- his motives and inspiration change day by day and minute by minute. Yet one thing remains, an unwavering desire to bring himself and his fellow man all that much closer to the land and its textures that hold our sincerest meaning and memories in this living world. Large or small, from palm of hand to living space wall, bringing life and light to your world will always be his goal.

Shane Martin is as definable as the ocean is one color and his brand, SubSanctuary, is no exception. Bound only by the changing of seasons and the tides of his own inner ocean, what he creates comes from a deep reverence of the organic materials that make up our world and the often-unseen patterns they're interwoven with. Visions come and go but the land and resources that sustain us and our visions, remain. At least for now. As we navigate a tumultuous and uncertain future, the role of art and sustainable resistance practices beg our undivided attention. By engaging in constant discourse with himself and his surroundings, Shane hopes to carefully bring forth what is not only beautiful but what is asking to be brought forth. Building bridges between art and utility in sacred natural materials brings him peace and he hopes to extend that to you, the beholder, as well.
